

What is a Tobacco Awareness Group?

THE PURPOSE of the tobacco awareness group is to help participants discover a new understanding about their relationship with tobacco and identify barriers to quitting. A tobacco awareness group is about introducing new thinking and insight, not about taking action or making behavioral changes. It is for individuals in the early stages of change: precontemplation and contemplation.

THE GROUP LEADER uses motivational interviewing techniques and group facilitation strategies to focus on specific topic areas that help participants think differently about their tobacco use. The group leader does not suggest solutions or teach practical skills. The group leader does not advocate for change or tell participants they need to stop using tobacco.

Objectives of the tobacco awareness group are to help participants:

- Develop insight into tobacco use behavior
- Identify advantages to quitting
- Develop ambivalence (mixed feelings) about tobacco use
- Identify the relationship between tobacco use and alcohol/other drug use (AOD)
- Talk about the role of tobacco use in recovery and relapse from AOD

Desired outcomes and long-term goals of the tobacco awareness group include:

- To raise awareness of tobacco related topics
- To develop “discrepancy” (the ability to recognize how current tobacco use conflicts with the person’s future goals or current values)
- To normalize and resolve ambivalence in favor of change
- To increase motivation to change
- To help participants move to the next stage of change
